

Your Time/system is in 2 Parts

2 Time/system Archive Box
 Keep the archive box on your desk. You can add forms to your Time/system ring binder as needed from its supply. This is also where you archive redundant items.

1 Time/system Ring Binder
 The Time/system ring binder is something you will always carry with you. It ensures that you have all current and important information at your fingertips. The clear structure and the intelligent forms help you make the best possible use of your time and reach your goals.

1 On the back of this folder there is a short reference guide listing all available forms and showing where to find them in your archive box and where to place them in the ring binder. Start by arranging the forms into your Time/system binder.

2 In the attached instructions you will find a description of each form, explaining how to optimise its use. Completed sample forms provide you with a speedy and practical guide to how to handle them effectively. Your Time/system will assist you with all your activities, planning schedules and goals. In addition, you are provided with extra space to record important information. The system is divided into three differently coloured sections.

The anthracite section is used for time-related forms referring to your short, medium and long term planning. In the red area you will find important information related to your goals, projects, and tasks.

Personal and important information can be well structured and stored in the grey section.

Project Overview - Day

Use this form when you need an annual overview detailed down to the day, e.g. for team resource or vacation planning. It is also the appropriate form when every single day of a project is important, e.g. in the event of severe time pressure or when project tasks are interdependent and need to be accurately and punctually co-ordinated.

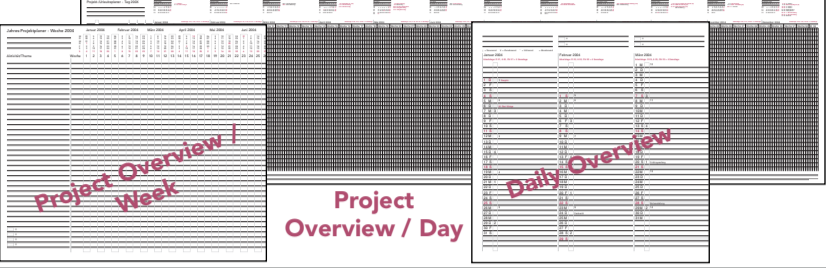

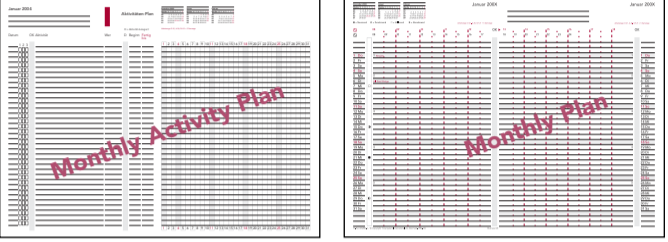

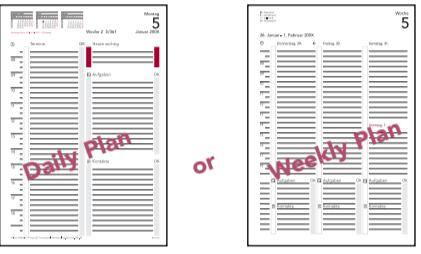

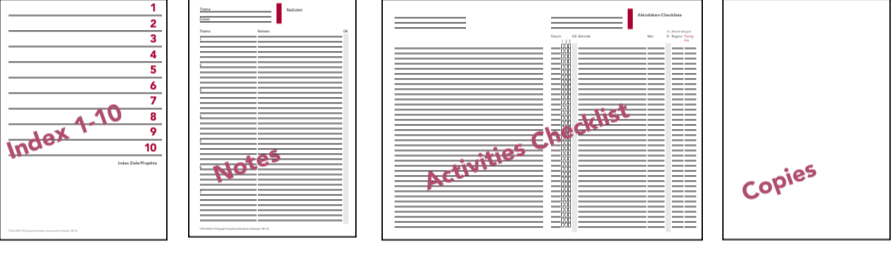

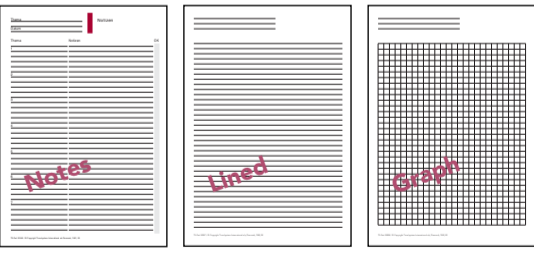

Using different colours, you can distinguish between different types of activity. In the bottom left hand corner of the sheet you can create an associated key.

Example: Training Scheduling

- Time management course
- Team management course
- Training objectives and motivation
- Change management course

Quick regerence guide

This overview shows you at a glance how to arrange your ring binder and where to find the related forms in your archive box. This is a suggestion for optimal use of your Time/system, based on our decades of experience. However, not everyone shares exactly the same set of tasks or the same style of working. Your Time/system is meant to live with you and to adapt flexibly to your requirements.
